Welcome to the NTU Doctoral School Research Festival

The Nottingham Trent University Doctoral School invite you to hear about the excellent research being undertaken by our talented postgraduate researchers here at NTU.

This is an excellent opportunity for you to network with other postgraduate researchers, staff and alumni from an exciting range of research areas, as well as hearing from other inspiring speakers about their multi disciplinary research, how you might disseminate your work, and career journeys after a doctorate at NTU.

Keynote speaker – Pat Thomson

Is there a doctor in the house? a.k.a. Making a contribution to knowledge

Pat Thomson PSM PhD FAcSs FRSA was a headteacher in Australia for twenty years. After a brief stint in a senior public service position she hightailed it into higher education. She has been a Professor in the School of Education at The University of Nottingham for the last fourteen years, researching entanglements of school and community change, the arts and creativity and alternative education. She also researches and writes about academic writing and doctoral education. She has twenty-one published books, a further four in various stages of completion, and she dreams of her very own library bookshelf. She blogs at patthomson.net and tweets as @ThomsonPat.
