Criminal convictions

To help the University reduce the risk of harm or injury to its students caused by the criminal behaviour of other students, we must know about any relevant criminal convictions that an applicant has.

Relevant criminal convictions are only those convictions for offences against the person, whether of a violent or sexual nature, and convictions for offences involving unlawfully supplying controlled drugs or substances where the conviction concerns commercial drug-dealing or trafficking. Convictions that are spent (as defined by the Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974) are not considered to be relevant and you should not reveal them (but please see the next paragraph).

If you wish to conduct research in teaching, health or social work, or courses involving work with children or vulnerable adults, you must tell us about any criminal convictions, including spent sentences and cautions (including verbal cautions) and bind-over orders. You will need an enhanced disclosure document from the Criminal Records Bureau of the Scottish Criminal Record Office Disclosure Service. The University will send you the appropriate documents should you be offered a place.
Applicants who enter X in the box will not automatically be excluded from the application process. However, the University will want to consider the application further and may ask for more information before making a decision.

If you are convicted of a relevant criminal offence after you have applied, you must tell us during the application cycle. Do not send details of the offence; simply tell us that you have a relevant conviction. The University may then ask you for more details.
