1. Overview

The University's framework, procedures and processes for assuring and enhancing the standards and quality of academic provision are designed to ensure an integrated system, which has the student learning experience at its centre.

- 1.1 The University has a mature and clearly articulated quality management framework, which resides under the authority of Academic Board.
- 1.2 Proportionate powers for aspects of maintaining standards and enhancing quality of taught courses are delegated to the Academic Standards and Quality Committee (ASQC), Sub-Committees, Schools (and course committees) and to Development and Approval Groups (DAGs).
- 1.3 Proportionate powers for aspects of maintaining standards and enhancing quality of research degrees are delegated to the University Research Committee (URC), University Research Degrees Committee (URDC), College Research Degrees Committees (CRDCs), course committees and to DAGs.
- 1.4 ASQC and URC have an important role in ensuring that the University's quality management procedures are operating in an appropriate manner, and the committees also seek to identify the need for, and to nurture, new academic development policy and practice.
- 1.5 Other important features of the University framework include:
 - a. Bespoke task and finish groups that assist in shaping policy (see para. 7);
 - b. A Validation Service Sub-Committee (VSSC) that oversees the University's collaborative provision with Validated Centres (see para. 4 and Quality Handbook (QH) Section 10C);
 - c. A School-based Collaborative Provision Sub-Committee which maintains oversight of the University's collaborations and partnerships other than those with Validated Centres (see para. 6 and QH Sections 10A and 10B);
 - d. A Cross School Standards and Quality Sub-Committee that maintains oversight of the standards and quality of all courses that are designed to work across several Schools (see para. 7);
 - e. A robust process for the approval of new courses and major changes to courses via DAGs. Each DAG membership is tailored to the scale and scope of the specific proposal, and includes peers external to the University (see QH Section 5);
 - f. A cycle of Periodic School Reviews (PSRs) and Periodic Research Degrees Review (PRDR), whereby, every five years, a School's quality assurance and enhancement strategies for its course portfolio are scrutinised by a team of trained internal reviewers and external peers (including a student representative) (see QH Section 7);

- g. A cycle of Periodic Course Reviews (PCRs) which ensures the continued quality of the student experience by reflecting on stakeholder feedback and evaluation of course data in relation to appropriate University and sector benchmarks (see QH Section 6);
- h. An annual reporting cycle that derives from critical reflections at course and School level, and well as central and local analysis of student data (see QH Section 6);
- i. Proportionate delegation of quality management responsibilities to Colleges (CRDCs), Schools (School Academic Standards and Quality Committees (SASQCs)) and course teams according to clear criteria (see para. 6 and QH Supplement 1A);
- j. The inclusion of the student voice throughout the governance framework through the inclusion of students on key committees, and via the Student Engagement and Academic Representation Steering Group (StEAR) (see QH Section 8);
- k. Principles and requirements for learning and teaching (see QH Section 14);
- l. A systematic process for the approval and initial briefing of the University's external examiners, overseen by the External Examiner Appointments Panel (see para. 5 and QH Section 9);
- m. School Standards and Quality Managers (SQM) and Learning and Teaching Coordinators (LTC), who facilitate standards and quality matters within Schools, and who collectively meet to network on a regular basis.

- h. To review student intake, progression, completion and employment or further study data across all courses and ensure that these are analysed and used to inform academic strategic developments, and for the purposes of equality and diversity monitoring.

- i. To receive and monitor annual course reports and action plans within them in accordance with University and School requirements. To receive reports from NTU Professional Services as appropriate.
- j. To produce a SSQR for ASQC on the courses run within the School (including those offered with collaborative partners) by 31 January each year.

Student assessment

- k. To monitor the effectiveness, appropriateness and implementation of regulations on student assessment on courses and to make recommendations for changes as appropriate.

Student evaluation of courses and teaching

- l. To monitor the mechanisms for student feedback on courses and teaching, the analysis of feedback received from students and the action taken upon such feedback.
- m. To prepare for subsequent publication a summary of feedback received from students and of the actions taken on that feedback.

External examining

- n. To make recommendations to the University External Examiner Appointments Panel on the appointment of external examiners.
- o. To receive external examiners reports and to establish and monitor procedures for analysing in detail external examiners' action points and ensuring that they are acted upon and result in quality enhancements.
- p. To undertake (within the context of the SSQR) a thorough analysis of the School's external examiner reports and its overall management of the external examining process (from induction onwards).

Professional, Statutory and Regulatory Bodies

- q. To monitor the involvement of Professional, Statutory and Regulatory Bodies (PSRBs) with courses, as appropriate, and ensure action is taken on the reports and recommendations from those bodies.
- r. To ensure that changes to NTU's PSRB register are notified to CADQ on a quarterly basis.

Course development

- s. To nominate a member of Development and Approval Groups (DAGs) for the consideration of new courses and major changes to existing courses.
- t. To receive regular feedback and reports on the activities of DAGs and to consider – from time to time – matters of principle or policy requiring the advice of SASQC as a whole. In addition, to monitor course team responses to DAG recommendations.
- u. To receive a regular synopsis from CADQ on the operation of DAGs across the University (to include good practice and innovation in course development) and to consider the implications for the School's policies, practices and support for course and academic development.

- v. To consider and approve proposals for modifications to courses of study.

Collaborative provision (other than at Validated Centres)

w. To ensure that courses provided in collaboration with external partners are monitored and developed according to the same procedures as those which apply to internal courses, and to report on these courses within the annual SSQR.

- x. To ensure that changes to NTU's Collaborative Register is notified to CADQ on a quarterly basis.

QAA Subject Benchmarks

- y. To receive new and revised QAA Subject Benchmark statements and ensure that they are acted upon by the relevant course team(s).

SASQC Membership

- Dean of School (Chair).
- School Quality Manager.
- Learning and Teaching Coordinator.
- College Academic Administration Manager or nominee.
- Senior Standards and Quality Officer from CADQ with responsibility to the School.
- Four Academic Team Leaders or their nominees.
- Co-opted members in line with School requirements.
- LLR Academic Liaison Team representative.
- School Employability Coordinator.
- Representative(s) of other Professional Services as appropriate.

It is recognised that the attendance of members of Central Services at each SASQC throughout the University will be potentially difficult to resource but there will be considerable benefits for School/Central Services working and understanding by representatives attending at least one meeting for each SASQC per year.

- Two student representatives.

The University has robust and extensive arrangements for securing a student voice in course monitoring and enhancement e.g. course committees, staff-student consultative committees, representation at Academic Board/ASQC, PSR, module evaluation etc. Therefore, while student representation at SASQC is desirable it is not essential and the difficulties in obtaining such representation are acknowledged; Schools may develop their own approaches for ensuring the student voice is considered at SASQCs.

- Servicing Officer.

Operational notes

- The SASQC meets at least four times a year.
- The SASQC undertakes its business, where appropriate, with the help of Sub-Committees and working groups and will receive timely and regular reports from any such Sub-Committees and working groups. In particular, SASQCs may find it appropriate to establish a School Learning and Teaching Sub-Committee, or equivalent, to pursue further the quality enhancement agenda.
- The SASQC has the ability, when appropriate, to hold separate meetings for different categories of courses, for example undergraduate and postgraduate.
- A member of another SASQC may be invited to attend meetings for staff development or other purposes. However, as the University has mature and extensive arrangements for ensuring externality in course development and broader quality management processes, there is no requirement for formal cross-membership.

12. Task and finish groups

- 12.1 ASQC may establish task and finish groups (T&FGs) to take forward particular quality management and enhancements themes. Such themes will typically require a detailed level of development and drafting that cannot be accommodated within the constraints of standard committee business.
- 12.2 T&FG themes may be identified at ASQC governance or development meetings, may arise from formal monitoring, feedback or reporting processes (at University, School or student level), may be prompted by external shifts in policy, or may stem from executive University decision making.
- 12.3 T&FG themes may be 'macro' in scope e.g. a complete review of a particular policy (involving consultation and implementation) or may be 'micro' in scope e.g. an update to an aspect of a procedure or process.
- 12.4 ASQC will establish the terms of reference and membership for each T&FG, which will include the expected outputs.
- 12.5 On occasion, a theme may be allocated to an existing University forum e.g. Learning and Teaching Coordinators, School Quality Managers, whereby that forum becomes, de facto, a T&FG for the purposes of taking forward that theme.
- 12.6 T&FGs will normally have at least one physical meeting, but may, particularly in the context of 'micro' themes, conduct business via electronic means.

- 12.7 T&FGs will have a fixed life. Those T&FGs with an extended life will report to ASQC on a regular basis, while short-term T&FGs may simply report to ASQC at the completion of their work.
- 12.8 ASQC will retain responsibility for approving, or otherwise, the outputs of T&FGs, which will be in the form of recommendations before consideration by ASQC.
- 12.9 As indicated above, each T&FG will vary in scope and timescale. Accordingly, the constitution and terms of reference for each will be bespoke. The following acts as a guide when formulating the constitution and terms of reference for a T&FG.

T&FG constitution

- The chair should be a member of ASQC (Standing or Greater Committee) or a CADQ /Professional Service manager.
- There should normally be at least one other member of ASQC.
- For 'macro' themes: a representative from each School or College (as appropriate to the task), a Professional Service representative and a student representative(s);
- For 'micro' themes – a suitably qualified and experienced member of academic or professional staff (as appropriate to the task).
- CADQ officer – secretary.

Terms of reference

- A T&FG should report to ASQC upon completion of the task (the chair would normally present to ASQC).
- A 'macro'/long term T&FG should establish key milestones and provide a short interim report(s) to ASQC.
- A T&FG should consult with relevant stakeholders appropriately (including externally if the theme necessitates this).
- A T&FG may request an amendment to its terms of reference, or the appointment of additional members or experts, or a time extension for completion of the task (via the T&FG steering group in the first instance).

13. Consultation

- 13.1 The above committees and agencies conduct regular consultations with staff via task groups and other forums in the development of:

- a. standards and quality enhancement policy and procedures; and
- b. regulations relating to undergraduate and postgraduate awards and the assessments undertaken by students.

14. Exceptions

- 14.1 The University may modify its quality assurance framework in respect of courses leading solely to PSRB awards and for non-award bearing short courses (Quality Handbook Supplement 5J).
- 14.2 The QH contains the policies, procedures and regulations governing all NTU taught and research courses (including those offered at collaborative partners). In exceptional circumstances, the Vice-Chancellor may – in consultation with the University Executive Team (UET) (and acting as Chief Executive and chair of Academic Board) – enact policies, procedures and regulations that fall within the spirit of the Quality Handbook, but outside the formal letter of the regulations. Such policies, procedures and regulations will be designed to ensure that the University operates to the best of its ability to maintain the quality of the student learning experience in such exceptional circumstances, and to seek to ensure that academic awards are conferred on the basis of the most secure data available. Effective communication will take place with staff, students, collaborative partners and external examiners to ensure that the contingency arrangements are understood by all within the University community. The contingency arrangements will only cover the period in which the exceptional circumstances prevail and the University will return to operate under the full extent of the Quality Handbook thereafter.

15. The executive

- 15.1 The Pro Vice-Chancellor Academic is responsible, in liaison with the Vice-Chancellor and other members of UET as appropriate, for executive oversight of the efficient and effective development of the University's academic portfolio and supporting systems and frameworks. To achieve this, the Pro Vice-Chancellor (Academic) works to ensure the continuing development and provision of efficient and effective courses and service, supporting and securing high academic achievement and satisfaction amongst students.
- 15.2 The key central agency which supports ASQC and the Pro Vice-Chancellor (Academic) is CADQ. CADQ is led by the Director of Academic Development together with a team of professional officers. CADQ's core function is to lead and support innovation and developments in curriculum design, teaching, assessment and learning, and quality assurance. CADQ administers ASQC, VSSC, EEAP, School-Based Collaborative Provision Sub-Committee, Cross-School Standards and Quality Sub-Committee, and Task and Finish Groups.

Other NTU agencies provide additional support:

- Academic Office

focuses on student appeals, awards and titles; award ceremonies; timetabling; examination organisation; student records; academic calendar and Academic Board.

■ Academic Planning

collates and interrogates national and international data and policy developments to inform NTU-wide academic direction. Academic Planning is also responsible for the coordination and further improvement of NTU Schools' academic planning cycle and identifies challenges and opportunities both in the external environment and within academic plans.

■ Centre for Professional Learning and Development

provides a responsive staff development service to the University. This includes:

- supporting colleagues in identifying learning and development needs and considering effective means of meeting these;
- formulating and delivering staff development events;
- creating strategy and policy in support of learning and development.

■ Collaborative Partnerships Office

works with the Pro Vice-Chancellor (Academic) to develop and implement a university-wide strategy for managing partnerships leading to academic awards. It coordinates developments with new collaborative provision partners; manages the Validation Service provision; coordinates Life Long Learning course provision and work with Schools to develop opportunities for NTU students to take part in Life Long Learning Partnerships.

■ Graduate School

is responsible for students undertaking research degrees and taught doctorates. The School provides services and support that stimulates and secure high quality and successful outcomes (see QH Section 11 for full details).

■ Libraries and Learning Resources

provides and develops the resources that support learning: it is also responsible for the co-ordination of access to services for students to extend their study skills e.g. digital literacy, dyslexia support and in-sessional English language support.
