

Frank Maes holds a Master in Political Sciences: Diplomatic Sciences – Ghent University, a Master in Shipping Law - University of Antwerp (UFSIA) and has a PhD in Law from Ghent University. He is professor of Public International Law at the Faculty of Law and Criminology of Ghent University and head of the Department of European, Public and International Law. He lectures inter alia law of the sea, environmental legislation, protection of oceans and seas, diplomatic law and multilateral negotiations, and is responsible for the UGent participation in the Philip C. Jessup International Law Moot Court Competition. He has been a guest lecturer at the Universities of Nairobi (Kenya) (1990, 1992, 2011), Dar es Salaam (Tanzania) (1997, 1998), Santa Clara (California) (2007), Wuhan (China) (2007, 2009, 2012), Tsinghua (2011) and Henan (2015). He is Director of the Maritime Institute (<http://www.maritimeinstitute.ugent.be/>) and education coordinator for the MSc in Maritime Science (<http://maritimescience.ugent.be/>). His research focusses on international and European environmental law, law of the sea and marine spatial planning. Main publications (books, articles) are in the field of marine environmental law and policy (see <http://lib.ugent.be/bibliografie/801000646927>).