

AHRC funding for UK/EU Arts and Humanities research students

The Midlands3Cities Doctoral Training Partnership will be awarding 410 PhD studentships over a five year period to excellent research students in the Arts and Humanities. The DTP, a collaboration between Nottingham Trent, Nottingham, Birmingham, Birmingham City, Leicester and De Montfort universities, provides research candidates with cross-institutional mentoring, expert supervision, including cross-institutional supervision where appropriate, subject specific and generic training, and professional support in preparing for a career.

English at Nottingham Trent University is inviting applications from students whose research interests include:

- American Literature
- Colonial, postcolonial, and global literature and culture
- Creative writing and critical-creative research
- Gender and Sexuality
- Labouring-class writing
- Literary and cultural theory
- Literature and technology
- Literature, film and visual culture
- Magazine and periodical writing
- Modernist and postmodernist literature
- Poetry and poetics
- Popular fiction
- Romantic literature
- Shakespeare and Early Modern writing
- Travel writing
- War and literature
- Women's writing

Individual staff pages provide further details about specialist research interests, and about the supervision opportunities offered by the English team.

The deadline for AHRC funding applications is 14th January 2015, by which time students must have applied for a place to study and have provided two references to a university within the DTP. For full details of eligibility, funding and research supervision areas, please visit the Midland3Cities website or contact enquiries@midlands3cities.ac.uk.

If you would like to learn more about postgraduate study and funding opportunities at Nottingham Trent University, you are warmly invited to attend Graduate School Open Events on 12th November 2014.
