1. Overview

The University's framework, procedures and processes for assuring and enhancing the standards and quality of academic provision are designed to ensure an integrated system, which has the student learning experience at its centre.

- 1.1 The University has a mature and clearly articulated quality management framework, which resides under the authority of Academic Board.
- 1.2 Proportionate powers for aspects of maintaining standards and enhancing quality of taught courses are delegated to the Academic Standards and Quality Committee (ASQC), Sub-Committees, Schools (and course committees) and to the University's Design Sprint process.
- 1.3 Proportionate powers for aspects of maintaining standards and enhancing quality of research degrees are delegated to the University Research and Innovation Committee (UR&IC), University Research Degrees Committee (URDC), School Research Degrees Committees (SRDCs), course committees and to DAGs/Design Sprints.
- 1.4 ASQC and UR&IC have an important role in ensuring that the University's quality management procedures are operating in an appropriate manner, and the committees also seek to identify the need for, and to nurture, new academic development policy and practice.
- 1.5 Other important features of the University framework include:
 - a. Bespoke task and finish groups that assist in shaping policy (see para. 15);
 - b. An Academic Partnerships Sub-Committee which maintains oversight of the University's collaborations and partnerships, including those with Validated Centres (see para. 7 and Quality Handbook (QH) Sections 10A-10C);
 - c. A Cross-School Standards and Quality Sub-Committee that maintains oversight of the standards and quality of all courses that are designed to work across several Schools (see para. 8);
 - d. A Mansfield Standards and Quality Sub-Committee that has responsibility for oversight of the quality and standards of the provision at the Mansfield HE hub (see para. 9);
 - e. An Apprenticeship Portfolio Sub-Committee that has responsibility for the oversight of the quality and standards of the University's Apprenticeship provision (see para. 10);
 - f. A robust process for the approval of new courses and major revisions to courses via the Design Sprint process. Each Design Sprint's membership is tailored to the scale and scope of the specific proposal, and includes peers external to the University (see QH Section 5);

- g. A cycle of Periodic Reviews (PRs) and Periodic Research Degrees Review (PRDR), whereby, every five years, a School's quality assurance and enhancement strategies for its course portfolio are scrutinised by a team of trained internal reviewers and external peers (including a student representative) (see QH Section 7);
- h. A cycle of Periodic Course Reviews (PCRs) which ensures the continued quality of the student experience by reflecting on stakeholder feedback and evaluation of course data in relation to appropriate University and sector benchmarks (see QH Section 6);
- i. An annual reporting cycle that derives from critical reflections at course and School level, and well as central and local analysis of student data (see QH Section 6);
- j. Proportionate delegation of quality management responsibilities to Schools (School Academic Standards and Quality Committees (SASQCs) and SRDCs) and course teams according to clear criteria (see para. 14 and QH Supplements 1A, 1B and 1C);
- k. The inclusion of the student voice throughout the governance framework through the inclusion of students on key committees, and via the Student Engagement and Academic Representation Steering Group (StEAR) (see para. 12 and QH Section 8);
- l. Principles and requirements for learning and teaching (see QH Section 14), and for enabling student development and achievement (see QH Section 2);
- m. A systematic process for the approval and initial briefing of the University's external examiners and independent end point assessors, overseen by the External Examiner and Assessor Appointments Panel (see para. 11 and QH Section 9);
- n. School Standards and Quality Managers (SSQMs) who facilitate standards and quality matters within Schools, and who collectively meet to network on a regular basis.

- 7.3 Members will be invited for a 3 or 4 year term to ensure that tenures are staggered. This will ensure continuity and ongoing expertise.
- 7.4 Membership will embed inclusivity and diversity in line with the University's strategic priorities.

Membership Parameters

- No more than 14 members (78%) who identify as white. The committee seeks to increase racial and ethnic diversity. Further, this committee acknowledges that "BAME" (Black, Asian, minority ethnic) is a problematic term and commits to using more specific and appropriate language for discussing race and ethnicity.
- No more than 11 members (61%) of the same gender. This committee acknowledges that there are more than two genders and commits to modelling non-binary and trans-inclusive practice.
- These parameters represent a deliberate intervention to move diversity beyond a deficit model, e.g. a quota system, where the focus is on minoritized characteristics. Instead, the caps aim to shift the focus to the majority or dominant characteristics which are frequently naturalized and rendered invisible through their ubiquity. In this way diversity is framed as an issue of "too many" rather than "too few."

15. Task and Finish Groups

- 15.1 ASQC may establish task and finish groups (T&FGs) to take forward particular quality management and enhancements themes. Such themes will typically require a detailed level of development and drafting that cannot be accommodated within the constraints of standard committee business.
- 15.2 T&FG themes may be identified at ASQC meetings, may arise from formal monitoring, feedback or reporting processes (at University, School or student level), may be prompted by external shifts in policy, or may stem from executive University decision making.
- 15.3 T&FG themes may be 'macro' in scope e.g. a complete review of a particular policy (involving consultation and implementation) or may be 'micro' in scope e.g. an update to an aspect of a procedure or process.
- 15.4 ASQC will establish the terms of reference and membership for each T&FG, which will include the expected outputs.
- 15.5 On occasion, a theme may be allocated to an existing University forum e.g. School Standards and Quality Managers, whereby that forum becomes, de facto, a T&FG for the purposes of taking forward that theme.
- 15.6 T&FGs will have a fixed life. Those T&FGs with an extended life will report to ASQC on a regular basis, while short-term T&FGs may simply report to ASQC at the completion of their work.
- 15.7 ASQC will retain responsibility for approving, or otherwise, the outputs of T&FGs, which will be in the form of recommendations for consideration by ASQC.
- 15.8 As indicated above, each T&FG will vary in scope and timescale. Accordingly, the constitution and terms of reference for each will be bespoke. The following acts as a guide when formulating the constitution and terms of reference for a T&FG.

T&FG constitution

- The chair should be a member of ASQC or a CADQ/Professional Service manager.
- There should normally be at least one other member from ASQC.
- For 'macro' themes: a representative from each School or College (as appropriate to the task), a Professional Service representative and a student representative(s).
- For 'micro' themes – a suitably qualified and experienced member of academic or professional staff (as appropriate to the task).

- CADQ Officer (Servicing Officer).

Terms of reference

- A T&FG should report to ASQC upon completion of the task (the chair would normally present to ASQC).
- A 'macro'/long term T&FG should establish key milestones and provide a short interim report(s) to ASQC.
- A T&FG should consult with relevant stakeholders appropriately (including externally if the theme necessitates this).
- A T&FG may request an amendment to its terms of reference, or the appointment of additional members or experts, or a time extension for completion of the task (via the T&FG steering group in the first instance).

16. Consultation

- 16.1 The above committees and agencies conduct regular consultations with staff via task groups and other forums in the development of:
- a. standards and quality enhancement policy and procedures; and
 - b. regulations relating to undergraduate and postgraduate awards and the assessments undertaken by students.

17. Exceptions

- 17.1 The University may modify its quality assurance framework in respect of courses leading solely to PSRB awards and for non-award bearing short courses (see Quality Handbook Supplements 5I and 5J).
- 17.2 The QH contains the policies, procedures and regulations governing all NTU taught and research courses (including those offered at collaborative partners). In exceptional circumstances, the Vice-Chancellor may – in consultation with the University Executive Team (UET) (and acting as Chief Executive and chair of Academic Board) – enact policies, procedures and regulations that fall within the spirit of the Quality Handbook, but outside the formal letter of the regulations. Such policies, procedures and regulations will be designed to ensure that the University operates to the best of its ability to maintain the quality of the student learning experience in such exceptional circumstances, and to seek to ensure that academic awards are conferred on the basis of the most secure data available. Effective communication will take place with staff, students, collaborative partners and external examiners to ensure that the contingency arrangements are understood by all within the University community. The contingency arrangements will only cover the period in which the exceptional circumstances prevail and the University will return to operate under the full extent of the Quality Handbook thereafter.

18. The Executive

18.1 The Deputy Vice-Chancellor (Academic Development & Performance), supported by the Pro Vice-Chancellor (Education), is responsible for executive oversight of the efficient and effective development of the University's academic portfolio and supporting systems and frameworks, in liaison with the Vice-Chancellor and other members of UET as appropriate. To achieve this, the Deputy Vice-Chancellor (Academic Development & Performance) and Pro Vice-Chancellor (Education) work to ensure the continuing development and provision of efficient and effective courses and service, supporting and securing high academic achievement and satisfaction amongst students.

18.2 The key central agency which supports ASQC, and the Deputy Vice-Chancellor (Academic Development & Performance) and Pro Vice-Chancellor (Education), is CADQ. CADQ is led by the Executive Dean of Learning and Teaching together with a team of professional officers. CADQ's core function is to lead and support innovation and developments in curriculum design, teaching, assessment and learning, and quality assurance. CADQ administers ASQC, AcaPSC, EEAP, X-SASQC, MSQSC and Task and Finish Groups.

Other NTU agencies provide additional support:

- Academic Registry
focuses on student appeals, awards and titles; award ceremonies; timetabling; examination organisation; student records; and academic calendar.
- Strategic Planning and Change
collates and interrogates national and international data and policy developments to inform NTU-wide academic direction. Academic Planning is also responsible for the coordination and further improvement of NTU Schools' academic planning cycle and identifies challenges and opportunities both in the external environment and within academic plans.
- Organisational Development
provides a responsive staff development service to the University. This includes:
 - supporting colleagues in identifying learning and development needs and considering effective means of meeting these;
 - formulating and delivering staff development events;

- creating strategy and policy in support of learning and development.
- Doctoral School
is responsible for students undertaking research degrees and taught doctorates. The School provides services and support that stimulates and secure high quality and successful outcomes (see QH Section 11 for full details).
- Governance and Legal Services is responsible for servicing the Academic Board and the Success for All Steering Group.
- Libraries and Learning Resources provides and develops the resources that support learning: it is also responsible for the co-ordination of access to services for students to extend their study skills e.g. digital literacy, dyslexia support and in-sessional English language support.
